

Paris Says 'Young,' Friends, So 'Young' It Shall Be

By ROSETTE HARGROVE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

PARIS—(NEA)—The Paris couture collections for spring showed once again that you CAN please all the women all of the time. There was "something for everyone"—as we always say.

For example, Michel Goma at Jean Patou presented a superb collection which will appeal to fashion-conscious women from 20 to 60.

But the big surprise came from Pierre Balmain and his dyed-in-the-wool conservative cohorts who have at last taken up the challenge the avant-garde designers have thrown at them. The short, short skirt was done by them all, and one wonders what will happen when their more sober clients get a look at themselves in the fitting rooms.

There are styles that will make a 17-year-old ecstatic, a 27-year-old wonder if she dares and a 40-year-old sad because she knows she doesn't dare.

Dresses for the most part still fall into the shift category. But subtle cut and soft fabrics make them closer to the figure than in the past. Dior's shift falls loosely in back from neck to hips. It clings from there down to the hem.

At Lanvin, Jules Grahay introduced the T-shape in jackets and coats with shoulders jutting out a good four inches, emphasized by colored yokes.

Coats in all the collections were comfortable, slender or semiwide. And the latest note is to show an inch or two of the dress worn underneath.

Most evening gowns, both long and short, have a slightly nightgownish look. They are made of layers of wispy chiffon with lots of flowing sleeves and flying panels.

Embroidery turned up massed at necklines in chunky collars and on straps and suspenders. The newest kind is done in iridescent coin-dot spangles.

Fabric favorites this time around are soft jersey, wool gabardine, pique and wool and silk satins for daytime. For evening there are sheers and silk organdy.

Colors are sometimes brazen, sometimes soft. White dresses peek out from under geranium red, lettuce green, orange, apricot or yellow coats and vice versa. And the pastels are in make-up shades of rachel, peach and light tans.

There were the usual shockers—Cardin's nude look for day with bared midriffs and armholes scooped so far inward that the top front of the dress consisted of about a two-inch-wide piece of fabric. For evening he showed a long "no-shape" length of sheerest chiffon, worn over a body stocking and banded at strategic points.

St. Laurent's contribution to the evening nude look was in the same transparent chiffon, but he used diamond embroidery where it helped most.

Chanel, faithful to the natural, showed that tricks and youth cannot replace class. Her collection proved that suggestions and subtleties can be sexier than shocks and nudity.

Hair Stylist Shares Secrets of Wig Care

by Alicia Hart
Beauty Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The woman who prefers not to admit her age winces when a specialist on hairpieces and wigs suggests she "compare her hairpieces with her dentures and consider them an essential part of herself."

With such a gambit, Michael of Vienna piques a potential customer's interest in wigs and what he says about them.

Michael has been in the hairstyling business 35 years and boasts of trophies naming him world champion in the field.

Although only a few thousand women who read this column might make their way to Michael's shop on fashionable 57th Street just off Fifth Avenue in New York, he generously shares some of his secrets on selection and care of wigs.

Michael's theory is that a woman who buys a wig should wear it every day for 10 days to two weeks before she actually can appreciate what she has. Also, the final styling should follow this exposure.

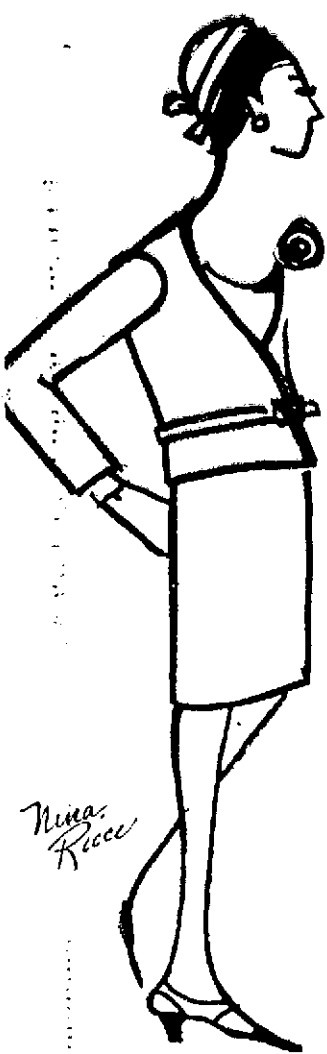

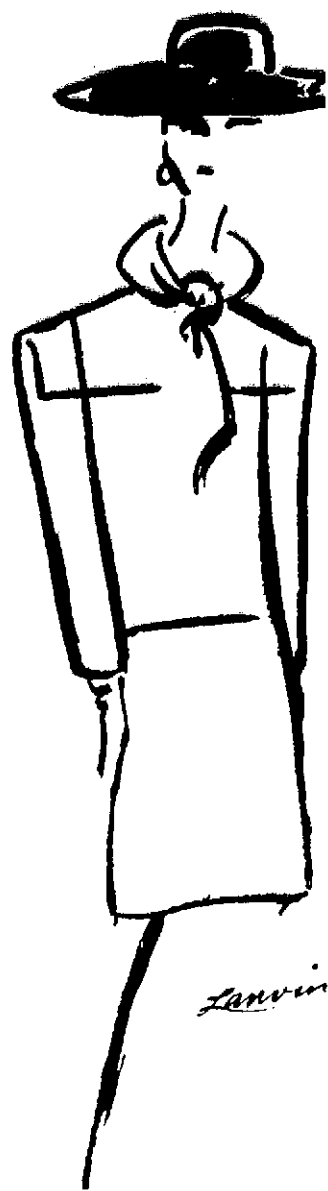

A woman should also protect her investment in a good wig, he says, by insisting on a proper fit.

"Many women," he explains, "don't wear their wigs because they never feel comfortable in them." A wig should fit closely to the head but not be held to it by tight elastic. Too tight elastic causes a whacking headache. The cap of a good wig, he explains, is truly fitted to each woman's head.

Another error to avoid when buying a wig, Michael says, is not to insist it be cut to a short length before wearing it several times. Unlike our own hair, a wig does not "grow." If you don't like it short, you are stuck with it. Start, too, with a conservative color close to your own hair. A brunette wig may not be bleached because this eventually can cause the wig to fall apart after several cleanings. But a blond wig can be tinted to a darker color.

Michael also cautions a new wig owner not to wash her hairpiece in soap and water. There are special wig care preparations on the market and these should be used when the wig is not cleaned professionally. He urges a woman not to leave her "head" to be cleaned in a beauty salon that doesn't insist on measuring her real head for the correct size every time.

A Switch in Hearty Irish Stew

by Gaynor Maddox
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

With St. Patrick's Day not far off, it's time to look into the matter of Irish stews.

We asked Joanne Tierney, New York home economist of Irish ancestry, what she learned on her recent trip to the Auld Sod. "A real Irish stew is however your mother made it," she reports. "It is brown or white and the ingredients vary according to family and county."

She went to County Limerick. There her cousin taught her how to make a "genuine" Irish stew using tomatoes. The tomatoes are a switch that might have surprised even good St. Patrick.

IRISH STEW

- 1 pound lamb, cut into 1 1/2-inch cubes
- 1 pound beef, cut into 1 1/2-inch cubes
- 1 (1 pound 3 ounce) can tomatoes
- 2 cups stock
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 6 to 8 white onions, whole
- 6 to 8 potatoes, pared and quartered
- 3 to 4 carrots, thickly sliced
- 2 stalks celery, sliced

IRISH STEW with the blush of tomato.

- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1/4 cup cold water

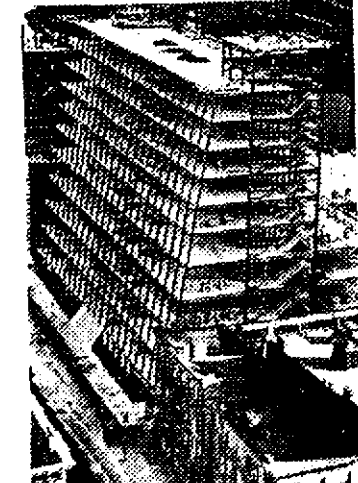

Combine meat, tomatoes, stock, salt and pepper in large kettle. Cover and simmer until meat is almost tender, about 45 minutes. Add vegetables. Simmer until meat and vegetables are about fork tender, 45 minutes. Reduce heat to slow simmer. Blend cornstarch and water. Gradually add to stew, stirring carefully so vegetables are not crushed. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly until mixture thickens and comes to boil. Season to taste, if needed. Simmer a few minutes to blend flavors. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

NOTE: Stew improves on standing and may be prepared ahead of time.

Begin Dinner with Refreshing "V-8" Juice

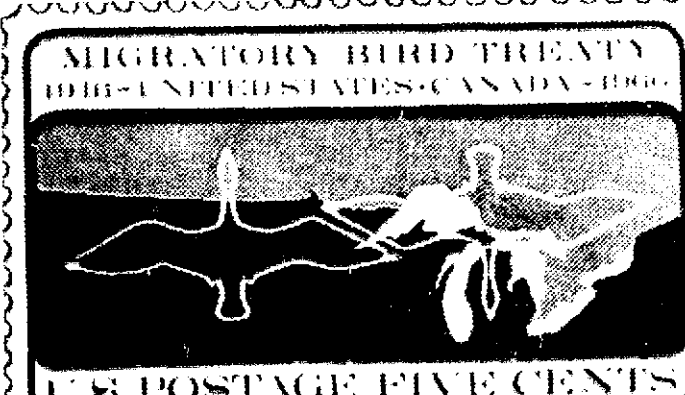

If you're hosting an informal dinner, don't make the mistake of confusing "informal" with "informal." There's a difference. The difference is in the quality of the food. In the case of a first course, the most appetizing, and your first course from a tray in the living room. Eliminate the minute confusion in the kitchen by serving quick-to-make, hot, zesty "V-8" cocktail sauce. The recipe is simple and the ingredients are readily available. ## Obscenity Definitions Vary Some

By BARRY SCHWEID
WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine years ago the Supreme Court decided sex isn't necessarily obscene. Perhaps it would have been just as well if the court had stopped there.

But the justices didn't. They went on to try to define obscenity. And though they have refined the definition since, no one seems entirely satisfied, least of all the justices themselves.

The reason: The definition appears to have posed as many questions as it answered. The result: The court took on a new batch of obscenity cases this session. Others are being pressed on it and a new definition may be in prospect before adjournment.

This much is clear: unless there is a great change of heart on the bench certain types of literature will remain outside the First Amendment guarantee of free speech. And both the federal and state governments will retain the right to censor this material and to jail the publisher.

Thus, in a sense, the United States hasn't moved very far from 1712 when Massachusetts made it criminal to publish "any filthy, obscene, or profane song, pamphlet, libel or mock sermon."

What has changed is that limits have been placed on the censor and the court has tried to narrow down what may legitimately be considered obscene. A sexy tract can't be banned unless it has "a tendency to excite lustful thoughts."

The dominant theme of the material as a whole — not a passage or a page or two — must be taken into consideration.

All ideas having even the slightest redeeming social importance must be given the "full protection" of free speech.

And the material must be considered obscene by the "average person" applying "contemporary standards."

This, then, is the keystone of the Supreme Court's definition — and its guideline to lower courts, publishers and the nation.

But what, exactly, is a "lustful thought" and how do you prove it was excited by the material in question? Who is to judge if an idea has "social importance"? What are the "contemporary standards" and who is the "average person" equipped to apply them?

"We know of no area of the law in which there is more confusion," the Arkansas Supreme Court said last May.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottal

"Love Unreturned Soon Dies?"

Dear Helen: I'm 22 been married five years. In that time I have never had a new dress or coat, had to borrow maternity clothes during those pregnancies. My husband gives me $20 to shop for groceries each week, and I have to return every penny not used, and write down every little item I bought. If it isn't "necessary," he makes me take it back and exchange it.

The children and I get our clothes at the Salvation Army second-hand shop, and what little furniture I have comes from there, too.

My husband has a good job, and he has a big savings account — in HIS name. He gets his clothes new (and pays plenty for them) and he has a new car, that he won't let me drive. He says I shouldn't want anything because I have "food in my guts and a roof over my head." He admits he has no love for me, only the children — and he doesn't act it, even with them. He smacks them around whenever they get in the way.

Finally, I opened a mail order charge account, but I couldn't get $10 a month to pay it, so they threatened to sue me. I was scared so I took my husband's checking account checks and signed them. He caught me and now it's just plain Hell at our house. If I even open my mouth I get a tongue lashing or a beating. The kids need the clothes I bought!

I am scared to death of him but I still love him. Besides, how could I live if I left him? — Defeated

Dear Defeated: . . . You'd probably live much better than if you stayed with the beatings and miserliness. There are laws about child support, you know.

I'll never understand how so many women can say, "I'm scared to death of him but I still love him," or, "He doesn't want me but I can't live without him?" Do you gals ENJOY being hurt?

And can't you realize that "Love unreturned, soon dies" . . . or should! — H.

Bridge Burning

Dear Helen: My husband went on a duck hunting trip with a friend. They had a sort of 'joint' apron they used around camp, and my husband put his removable bridgework in its pocket one morning when he was brushing his teeth. Later the friend put the apron on to fix breakfast, and then they were backing up to the camp fire as men do — to get warm. Well, this man's legs got too hot, and he switched the apron around to his back to keep some of the heat off. It caught fire and he jerked it off and threw it in the flames. . . with my husband's bridges in the pocket.

They're very expensive as you know, to replace. Who pays? Incidentally, are any other wives as tired as I am of duck at $20 a pound? — Hunting Season Widow

Dear Widow: I've heard of burning bridges behind you — but never quite so literally! Before you present a bill that might wreck a friendship, check with your insurance agent. If you or the friend have a homeowner's policy, those burned bridges are most likely covered.

Second question: Probably, but if they're nice little wives, they grin and bake 'em. — H.

Dear Helen: I'm a man with a gripe. Why can't you dames be more careful when you open the car doors on parking lots? Don't you know every time you hit another car that way, it chips the paint? — Lee, A Bachelor

Thank Gawd

Dear Lee: Take a look at the edge of your car door and then take back that first stone! — H.

Hope was bedded with the flu in his North Hollywood home and never showed up.

Ashe Subject to Call by Armed Forces

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
SALSBURY, Md. (AP) — What does Arthur Ashe see through his new, horn-rimmed spectacles — the Davis Cup or Viet Nam?

"I'm just sitting tight... whatever they decide is all right with me," the 22-year-old tennis whiz from Richmond, Va., said today while others contemplated his future.

Ashe currently is 1-D in the draft. He is returning to UCLA to complete studies for graduation in June. Then he becomes, like other young men of his age, the pawn of Uncle Sam.

Ashe's case is a bit different. As an ROTC student, he is entitled to an automatic lieutenant's commission in the Army upon graduation and is committed to two years' immediate service.

As the nation's second best tennis player he also is one of the main hopes of recapturing the Davis Cup from Australia in December.

For morale and prestige purposes, Uncle Sam may figure Ashe is more valuable on the tennis court for the last six months of 1966. In this case, the State Department could take a hand.

Right now, Ashe is busy trying to win the National Indoor Championship here against perhaps the strongest field ever assembled for the event.

Second seeded behind Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., Ashe beat Jaide Mukerjee of India Tuesday night 6-4, 6-4 and qualified to meet 19-year-old Stan Smith of Pasadena, Calif., in today's second round.

He donned glasses to improve his vision but found he was working on the wrong end. "I had trouble with my footing," he said. "The surface seemed fast and the canvas slipped under my feet."

Ralston survived along with the other two top American seeds — Charlie Pasarell of Puerto Rico, No. 3, and Ron Holmberg of Dallas, No. 4, plus the four foreign seeds. Ralston plays Tomaz Koch of Brazil in the second round, Pasarell meets bearded Torben Ulrich of Denmark and Holmberg plays John Pickens of Tuscaloosa, Ala.

Manuel Santana of Spain, topping the foreign list, won over Dick Dell of Bethesda, Md., 7-5, 6-0 and next will play Eugene Scott of St. James, N.Y.

Tech Upsets A&M, Porkers Defeat Rice

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer
For the first time since Will (The Stilt) Chamberlain was a sophomore in 1957, the Kansas Jayhawks may win an undisputed Big Eight Conference basketball championship this season.

Seventh-ranked in this week's Associated Press poll, the Jayhawks impressed Tuesday night with a 98-54 home-court thumping of Missouri. Walt Wesley's 25 points and 13 rebounds paced the Jayhawks to their 17th triumph in 20 games, including 8-1 in league play.

All three defeats were suffered on the road to UCLA, Southern California and Nebraska, and the Jayhawks are favored to turn the tables on Nebraska late this month. Nebraska currently leads the Big Eight at 8-0.

The eight-ranked St. Joseph's Hawks of Philadelphia, the only other team in the AP Top Ten to see action, also impressed with an 83-79 road victory over Davidson at Charlotte. Cliff Anderson's lay-up and two free throws by Matt Guokas provided the winning margin for the Hawks in the closing minutes after Davidson had taken a 77-75 lead.

Anderson and Guokas each got 23 points to boost the Hawks' record to 18-4. Rod Knowles, with 23, and Dick Snyder, with 22, led Davidson.

Iowa virtually eliminated Minnesota from the Big Ten race with a 96-87 home-court triumph over the Gophers, George Washington ended a 12-game losing streak by defeating East Carolina 86-80 at home and Rice lost its 28th straight, including 18 this season, by dropping a 73-67 decision on the road to Arkansas.

Southern Methodist moved within one game of leading Texas A&M in the Southwest Conference by beating Baylor 68-66 on the road as Texas Tech, playing at home, handed the first-place Aggies their second straight SWC defeat 98-85.

In other major games, Rutgers beat Navy 69-65, Boston College took Boston University 73-62, Rhode Island downed Holy Cross 84-68, Connecticut thumped New Hampshire 113-62, Duquesne nipped Kent State 70-66, Texas defeated Texas Christian 85-77, St. John's of New York crushed Notre Dame 77-59 and Miami of Ohio whacked Marshall 71-52. All were road triumphs.

At home, N.C. State took North Carolina 87-77, Furman edged Virginia Military 73-72, Memphis State whipped Miami of Florida 86-72 and Oklahoma routed New Orleans Loyola 69-44.

Yerger Junior Boys Pull Meet Upset

By CALVIN MULBROW
In the first round of the District Three Tournament, which took place in Harris gym last night, Yerger Junior boys upset Blevins Jr. boys, 39-20.

The Junior teams of Yerger and Blevins got off to a slow start. Blevins in the first period made only one field goal and 3 free throws. Yerger made four field goals and two free throws.

Yerger, having a five point advantage over Blevins, was in the lead 10-5 at the end of the period.

Yerger in the second period proved to have the stronger defense. They allowed Blevins to make only one point in the second period. Yerger was in the lead at the half, 21-6.

Blevins, in the third period, was trying to close in on Yerger but at the end of the period Yerger was still leading 27-15.

It was the last chance for Blevins and they had less than six minutes to close the huge gap, their attempt was unsuccessful and Yerger won it 39-20 over Blevins.

High point man, Yerger — H. Johnson with 12 and for Blevins — R. Conway with 5.

Malvern was unable to come last night therefore, there was only one game played in the District three tournament.

Archer Has Spurned a $25,000 Bid

By MURRAY ROSE
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — Joey Archer, who has been seeking a middleweight title shot for three years, has spurned a $25,000 guarantee to fight welterweight king Emile Griffith for the right to meet middleweight champion Dick Tiger of Nigeria in a title fight April 25.

The handsome, 28-year-old New Yorker said Tuesday, "I feel I'm entitled to the fight with Tiger and I don't think I should have to fight anyone for what I deserve. I'll even fight Tiger for nothing."

The bizarre chain of events for even the strange world of boxing was touched off by the unprecedented offer of Griffith, already contracted to meet Tiger in a middleweight title fight at the Garden, April 25 to take on Archer in a 12-round fight-off at the Garden March 18.

Griffith, incensed at accusations by the Archer camp and some writers that the wrong man was getting the title fight with Tiger, walked into the Garden office of matchmaker Teddy Brenner and said:

"I'm fed up with all this junk Archer and his brother have been saying about me. Make a fight for me with Archer sometime in March. If I win he'll have to shut up. If I lose, he can have the fight with Tiger. I'll tear up the contract signed to fight Tiger."

Brenner then contacted Griffith's co-managers, Gil Clancy and Howie Albert, and they reluctantly consented to do what their fighter wanted. Brenner then consulted Lew Burston, Tiger's American representative, and he, too, agreed.

The matchmaker finally went to Jimmy Archer, the fighter's brother and manager. Jimmy said he was delighted and accepted the deal.

The Garden went to work quickly and set up a press conference for 2:30 p.m. Tuesday to announce the challenge fight between Griffith and Tiger. But several hours before the press conference, Jimmy Archer called Brenner to tell him the fight was off.

"Joey doesn't want it," said Jimmy.

"I'm embarrassed," said Harry Markson, managing director of boxing at the Garden to a roomful of news and television reporters and photographers. "Archer agreed to the match last night. But now he has changed his mind."

Archer came down later from the gym where he was training to explain his stand.

"My brother, Jimmy, agreed to the fight, not me," said Joey, who has a 48-2 won-lost record. "We always go over these things together. But this time he didn't tell me."

"I was promised a title fight with Joey Giardello if I beat Rubin Carter. So I skipped Carter but it was Carter who got the title fight. The same thing happened with Tiger. I was promised the shot at Giardello if I beat Tiger. Well, I beat Tiger but it was Tiger who got the title fight."

"I want the title fight. I've waited three years for a title fight so I'll wait a little longer and I'll fight the winner."

Brenner said that might not happen. He said if Tiger won he probably would go to Rome and fight Italy's Nino Benvenuti.

Rice Streak Remains Unchanged

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Rice's hopes of ending its long basketball losing streak were stymied Tuesday night when Arkansas tallied seven free throws in the final four minutes and beat the Owls 73-67.

The defeat extended Rice's losing string to 28 straight, the longest in the nation. Rice's Southwest Conference record fell to 0-9 and the Owls are 0-18 this season.

J. D. McConnell scored 21 points to pace Arkansas to its fifth SWC victory in nine games and 12th triumph of the season against seven defeats.

Steve Rousseau added 14 points and Ricky Sugg 11 for the Porkers, who hit 25 of 50 shots from the field.

Doug McKendrick led Rice with 16 points followed by Mike Inselmann with 12, Larry Miller 11 and Bill Doty 10.

Lendel Thomas scored 17 points for Harrison, 27-0 for the year. Vernie Harris had 22 for the Bombers, who own a 24-3 mark.

Expansion Is Talk of the National Loop

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The National Football League continued the job of stocking its new Atlanta franchise today and it talked about expansion to 16 clubs in 1967.

While the Atlanta Falcons were picking the 42 veterans who will form a base for their 168 operation, the owners considered the expansion report from the Stanford Research Institute.

The institute's report was strictly confidential. Commissioner Pete Rozelle clamped the lid on all pertinent information about the surveys of Boston, Cincinnati, Houston, New Orleans, La., Phoenix, Ariz., Portland, Ore., and Seattle, Wash.

"We expect to expand to 16 clubs, probably in 1967," said Rozelle. "I think we will then have two eight-team conferences, each divided into two four-team divisions. The division winners will play, and the two survivors will meet for the league championship."

Although the Stanford people said they had rated the seven cities on the basis of potential NFL attendance, stadium facilities, season ticket potential and estimated revenue from attendance and concessions, they refused to say if any one city was in the lead.

"This is as much as we can give out without making a circus of it," said Rozelle. "After our owners have a chance to evaluate their 200-page report, we will place our own weight on the ratings they have given."

"There is no precise timetable for the selection. The decision on the location of the franchise will be made only after the thorough study of the survey and the consideration of all other factors."

It is likely that the decision will be made at the spring meeting in late April. No site has been selected for that meeting.

The club owners, saddened by the death of the wife of George Halas, pioneer owner-coach of the Chicago Bears, named a delegation to attend Mrs. Halas' funeral in Chicago Thursday. They will continue the league meeting, which probably will end Thursday.

A proposal to increase the player limit from 40 to 42 was rejected. That means the new Atlanta team, which was granted special privileges, will be able to retain 46 men during the first two weeks of the season and 42 the rest of the way.

Draft Board Will Give Clay Time

By BILL MANN
LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The chairman of Cassius Clay's draft board says "it would make sense" if the Army delayed Clay's induction until after his March 29 heavyweight title fight with Ernie Terrell because of the tax money the fight would produce.

"But I don't expect it," J. Allen Sherman said Tuesday. "They haven't done it before." Estimates of tax income from the fight are in the $500,000 range.

"It's still not certain whether Clay will be in our March call, anyway," Sherman said. "Our amarch quota hasn't been assigned."

Sherman said the board will meet Thursday, be given the quota, and classify the eligible men. Then, he said, inductees will be selected by age.

Clay, at 24, is two years below the maximum age and unmarried. "So he's pretty close to the top of the list," Sherman said.

Clay will have 10 days from the time he receives his induction quota hasn't been assigned.

"I don't know what ground, if any, he has, or if he'll ask for a deferment," Sherman said. He said deferments currently are given for student status, marriage and certain occupations.

"But fighting's not one of them," he said.

"The Army might have some other deferment for Clay, though."

Time a Big Factor to Candidates

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A state Democratic Party official says time is becoming a big factor to candidates in a proposed special election to name a successor to Oren Harris in Congress.

State Insurance Commissioner Harvey G. Combs, assistant secretary of the Democratic Party, said Tuesday that it would be foolish for Democrats to establish a date for a special primary until litigation is completed in Pulaski Chancery Court.

Travis N. Beeson, a Republican from Camden, filed suit asking the court to set boundaries for an election in the 4th District.

Beeson's suit asks specifically if the election should be held in the 28-county district before a recent reapportionment plan, the 20-county district after reapportionment or statewide.

The court ruled last Friday that no election could be held in the 28-county district. Other portions of the suit are pending.

The Democrats had scheduled a special primary in the 28 counties for March 15. Republicans had a primary slated in the 20-county district on March 1, but Lynn Lowe of Texarkana was the only person to file as a candidate.

The Republican endorsed Lowe's candidacy earlier this week.

Combs said he thought the Democrats should put off the special primary until July 26, the date for the regular primary.

Have Yanks Cornered Growing Beatle Market?

CHAIRMEN OF THE BOARD: These guys, believe it or not, are big business, and anybody with $2.50 can own a piece of it. From left to right, Paul, George, John. Bottom: Ringo.

By TOM A. CULLEN
European Staff Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

LONDON — (NEA) — Following news that Americans are planning to own the Beatles, the word went out to lock up the Crown Jewels, to nail down Nelson's Column in Trafalgar Square, and to put a rope around the Rock of Gibraltar.

Clearly, to some Americans, nothing is sacred.

The British began to suspect a transatlantic plot when shares in Northern Songs, which publishes the song hits written by Beatles John Lennon and Paul McCartney, suddenly began to rocket. The price rose to $2.50 per share, which is double the original asking price.

Now the secret is out. Americans have been investing heavily in the Beatles in what is quite obviously an attempt to capture Britain's greatest export asset. "The big buying has come from America, admits Bruce Solomon, partner of Solomon and Company, the stockbrokers who are handling Northern Songs.

What attracts the Beatles' fans is that they can buy a stake in John and Paul for only $2.50 a share, which is dirt cheap by American standards. Du Pont stock, for example, costs $238 a share, while IBM is priced at $497. And computers can't even sing... yet. The heavy American investment in the Beatles, however, has not been appreciated here, where the Beatles are regarded as part of the national heritage. The British suspect that some sort of Yankee horse-trade is in the making, whereby the Beatles would be whisked away to spend most of their time touring the United States.

Meanwhile, the story of Northern Songs, the Beatles' publishing firm, reads like Cinderella, complete with ugly step-sisters and Ringo, as Prince Charming, riding a pumpkin coach.

The ugly step-sisters were the financial journals which, with one voice, predicted disaster when Northern Songs was first quoted on the Stock Exchange. "Yeah, Yeah, NAY!" was the way The Investor's Chronicle headlined its story on the new Beatles financial venture.

In another financial newspaper the shares were described as a "low-grade, short-life gold mine." "How this one got an exception to the normal Stock Exchange rules is beyond me," declared the writer of "Investor's Dairy."

Only The Economist rallied to the Beatles' defense, putting its finger on the real cause of the discontent. "The music written by John Lennon and Paul McCartney is probably not a hit with those who write financial columns," The Economist declared. "This may explain their pompous attitude."

Like Cinderella, the Lennon-McCartney saga has had a happy ending, for at the end of its first year of operation Northern Songs announced a dividend of 32 1/2 per cent.

Northern Songs grew out of a meeting in February 1963 between Dick James, a crooner turned music publisher, and Brian Epstein, the Beatles' manager. Epstein saw in the music publishing venture a chance to convert some of the group's heavily taxed income into capital.

Today the company has as its main assets 91 songs written by the Lennon-McCartney team. For every record sold Northern Songs gets a gross royalty of about 2 1/2 cents per side, shared equally between the composers and the company.

In addition, there are fees for using Beatles songs on radio, television, films, and, important for Northern Songs, the same royalties for every new release of the songs.

That this can run into big money is evident from the fact that "Yesterday," the Lennon-McCartney hit, to take one example, has been recorded by different artists under 26 labels all over the world.

What of the future? What will happen to Northern Songs when the Beatle vogue is over?

Dick James, the firm's general manager, says that their loss of popularity as performers will have no effect upon John and Paul as composers. This "Rodgers and Hammerstein of the future," as he calls them, will still be here turning out hits at the ripe old age of 30—providing Americans don't steal them, of course.

Boycott Hurt Hullabaloo

BY DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)
Did you ever hear of a reverse black list? Neither did I, but I'm told that one of them was imposed on Hullabaloo and that may have contributed to its decline and fallabaloo.

It all started when the show would not hire Pete Seeger, the folk singer. Rumors are that this was part of a black list because of Seeger's alleged leftist leanings.

Because of this, some of Seeger's friends and admirers decided to boycott Hullabaloo, in protest. Many of the top folk singers refused to appear on the show—Joan Baez, Peter, Paul and Mary, even the nonpolitical Kingston Trio. And without these acts, the show had to hire lesser talents and suffered accordingly.

One of these days, somebody will write a folk song about the whole thing.

DONAHUE, or YELLIN' OF TROY

"Just think," says Troy Donahue, sadly, "if I'd spent all that time studying, I could have been a doctor today."

All that time was seven years, which he devoted to Warner Bros. television shows and features. As of Jan. 1, 1966, that contract was up and now Troy Donahue is moving on (he hopes) to bigger and better things.

"But first," he says, "I have to erase the stigma of commercialism which is attached to my name. It's not that I want to get into way-out arty things—I believe entertainment should be entertaining—but I do want to do better things than I've done."

His own company is planning a feature based on the life and times of Mufi the Surf, who moved up from the beach to become a museum-robber.

"It would have a beach background," Troy says, "but only in part. And even the beach parts would be good—nobody has yet done a realistic study of beach boys and girls, how they really talk and act."

Troy has done research on the subject. At the beach.

HUTCHINS, or WILL POWER

Will Hutchins has just done his fifth pilot for a television series. The first was Sugarfoot, which sold. Then came three no-sales. And now this one, called Hey, Landlord, which is notable because it is the first television try by the Mirisch Company, one of the top feature film producers.

Hutchins says that from now until he knows if the pilot has sold or not is nervous time. It always is.

"But this time," he says, "it isn't quite so bad as before. This time I've got another iron in the fire."

That second-string iron is his own series idea, a wild adventure yarn he's calling Hurricane Hutch. If Hey, Landlord sells, he hopes to make Hurricane Hutch into a feature. If Hey, Landlord doesn't sell, then his idea will be readied for television.

In any case, Hutchins is committed to screen comedy. He's been comedy-oriented since he was a baby.

"I remember," he says, "a woman bending over my crib and I did something that made her laugh. Ever since, I've been a comedy actor."

How's that for total recall?

The Boutique Denim on the Go

By HELEN HENNESSY

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Take a band called the Bleach Boys, a parade of denim designs that run the fashion gamut from poolside to dance floor, shake well and pour them into the Versailles Ballroom of New York's Astor Hotel. Now you have the recipe the Denim Council whipped up for a recent fashion show.

Hennessy

The Bleach Boys (young men who are financing their educations at Fairfield College, Conn., with their band earnings) chose their name on one special occasion to rib all the fuss about bleaches and detergents. And through numerous concerts and television appearances since, they have been stuck with it. It has nothing to do with the color of their hair.

This was one of the swiftest fashion shows I have ever attended. There was enough variety in fashion and music to please everyone.

First the boys, in permanent press faded denim and navy shirts, played the current youth-type songs which pleased the youth-types in attendance and set the pace for "Denim on the Go-Go."

Then came the fashions. And what has been done with denim is nothing short of great.

Clothes by seven designers — Bobbie Brooks, Cole of California, County Calicos, Gussie and Becky, Kiyoo Kasuals, Ellen Lockwood and Pantree—showed the fabric in tones from navy to multicolor and fashions to cover around-the-clock casual wear, plus a note for evening.

There was a poolside dress in pink denim with a matching hat and beach bag.

Short pants, teamed with a halter-top in white, were trimmed with ruffles lined in a colorful print.

A railroad-striped scrubbed denim jacket was shown with co-ordinated bra and hip-hugging pants.

Turquoise was represented in an A-line skirt with a handkerchief print man-tailored, long-sleeved shirt.

One delightful ensemble featured a navy-double-breasted jacket with red calico print lining, sleeveless shell blouse and A-line skirt.

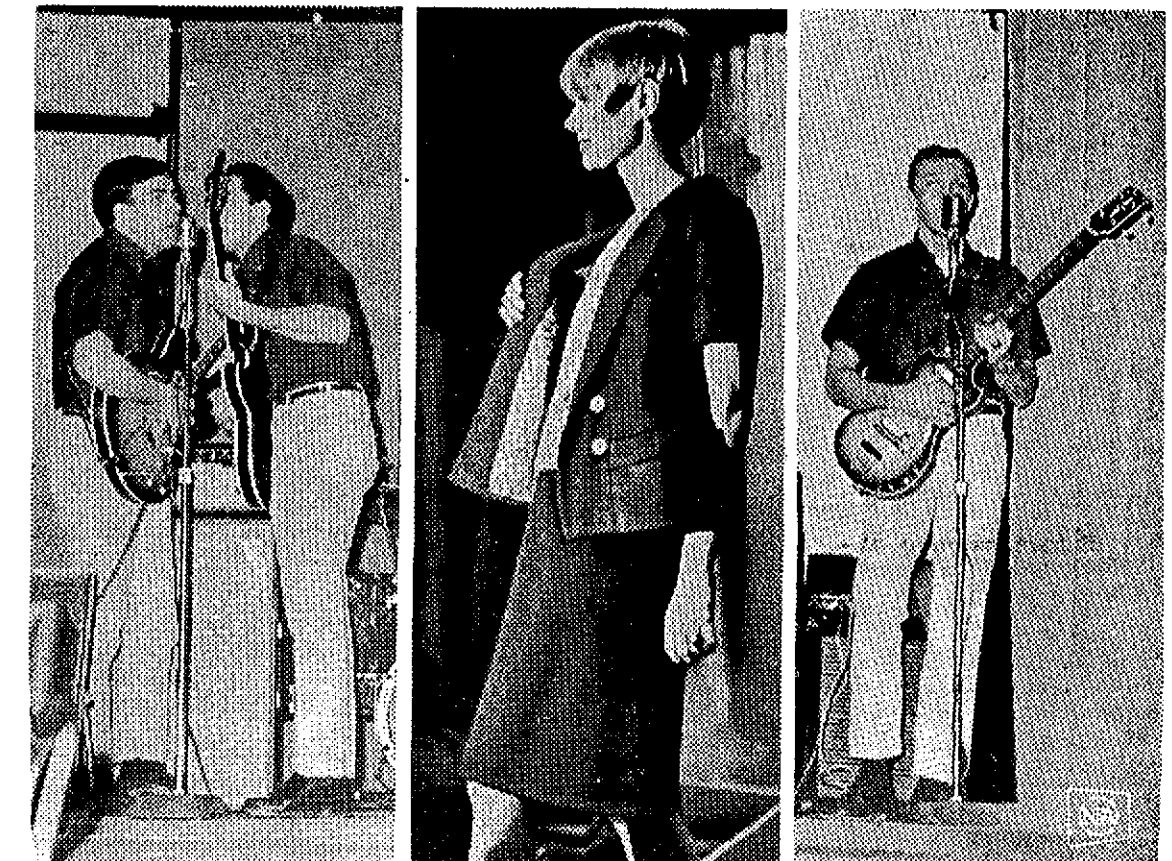

There was even a full-length denim terry robe.

The surprise number was a scrubbed denim backless evening gown by Gussie and Becky, with rhinestone buckles. Floor-length with crisscross straps in back, this gown proved the versatility of denim. It need never be a wallflower at the dance.

When the fashion show ended, back came the Bleach Boys—this time with something for those of us who cut our musical teeth on the pop tunes of the '40s. They wore the uniform of the teen-ager of that decade—saddle shoes, rolled-up blue jeans and sweat-shirts.

Then the ballroom shook to the rollicking "Music Goes Round and Round" and "Mairsy Doats." Judging from the applause and general enjoyment the audience well-remembered the days when "cool" meant it wasn't hot.

All told it was a great show and the fashions were (shall we say?) smashing.

The Bleach Boys played swinging music at a recent showing of swinging denim fashions at the Versailles Ballroom at New York's Hotel Astor. Denim ensemble (center) by Kiyoo Kasuals is in navy. Jacket is double-breasted with red calico print lining. Calico shell blouse is sleeveless and skirt is an A-line.

How to Lose Friends by Asking Questions

by Ruth Millett
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Questions any woman wishes they wouldn't ask her—

"How does it happen that an attractive woman like you never married?"

"What color did your hair used to be?" (When obviously the silver threads far outnumber the gold.)

"Haven't you put on a little weight since I saw you last?"

"Where have you been keeping yourself?" (Implying she's on the shelf.)

"I'll bet you wish we would all go home so that you could go to bed, don't you?" (Obviously, she can't give an honest "Yes" answer.)

"Don't you remember me?" (If she did, she would have greeted you by name.)

"Did you make that dress, yourself?" (If she didn't she'll think you're being catty and if she did she will wish you had asked, "Where in the world did you FIND that dress?")

"Is that a wig you're wearing?" (If it is she doesn't want it to look like a wig and if it's her own hair she doesn't want it to look like a wig, either.)

"Did you make this cake from a mix?" (Next time it WILL be a mix—if she started it from scratch. And if it was a mix you can be sure she hoped you wouldn't know it.)

"When are you going to retire?" (If she has even one year to go before she reaches retirement age she'll hate you for that question.)

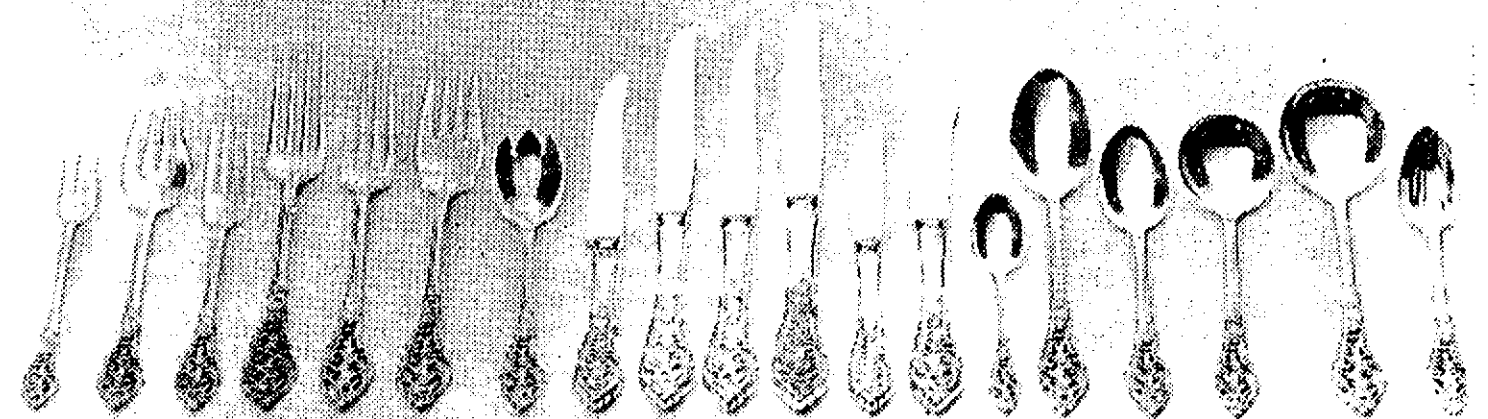

"Well, how does it feel to be a grandmother?" (It felt fine until all her friends who aren't grandmothers started asking.)

"Have you got a date Saturday night?" (If you want a date, speak up and ask for it outright. Don't put a girl on the spot like that.)

Where Has All the Silver Gone?

Victorian sterling such as this is hard to find nowadays.

By BARNEY SLATER
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK — (NEA)—Sign of the times:

The New York antique market, hub of the world's traffic in relics, ruins and other bygone, suddenly finds itself in a mysterious embarrassment of riches.

A George II silver cream pitcher that sold for $125 last year is now marked up to $200.

A Napoleon III tea service, for sale a couple of years ago at $1,500—and subject to haggling at that—is now for sale at an unshakable $5,000.

A flatware service for 12 (from soup spoons to nut picks) that cost $500 when it was new 50 years ago, is now bringing $1,200 or more.

All in all, if you had invested in antique silver in 1963, you would have just about doubled your money by now. As one dealer put it:

"It's the biggest boom I've ever seen."

The only trouble is that there's hardly any of this antique silver around. And nobody in the trade seems to know where it has disappeared to, or why.

All they know is that their shelves, which until only a few months ago were gleaming with trays, pitchers and ladles, are now practically bare.

It is not uncommon for a dealer to get several calls each day from wholesalers who are willing to buy back antique silver at the retail price.

And even if you're willing to spend $5,000 for that Napoleon III tea set, you'll have to look pretty hard to find one.

The cause of this sudden boom in silver and its scarcity is hard for the trade to explain. To quote one wholesaler on the subject:

"The market is always a little thin at this time of year. This is when the European dealers come to this country to buy back European silver in order to have something to sell to American tourists when they are in Europe in the spring and summer."

"But this year, for some strange reason, the European dealers have been buying up not only European silver, but Early American silver as well to sell abroad."

And from a retailer with a thriving shop in the antique silver district:

"I can't understand it. I haven't been able to sell tea sets like this in 35 years. But they're going like... well, like cocktail shakers."

One wholesaler, just back from England, reports:

"I put together a shipment of about 900 pounds—everything from teaspoons to mismatched creamers and sugar bowls—and took them with me."

"And with everything added in—from having to buy them at nearly retail prices to paying air freight charges for the whole lot—I still did better on this transaction than I've ever done since World War II days."

Nobody, of course, can predict where the boom in silver will go from here if people are determined to invest their money in this metal.

But as dealers point out, selling the last antique grape shears and candle snuffers does not end the supply of merchandise in silver.

There is still, for example, everybody's old and unused silver plate that has been lying in the attic all these years because nobody would buy it.

Then, too, what about the old-fashioned garden variety of silver dollar made by the U.S. mint?

As of this writing, $100 worth of silver dollars will cost you at least $150 on the open market.

FOUR DOWN AND MORE TO GO—Gale-force winds, snow and ice make walking as well as driving hazardous in much of the nation gripped by winter. These pedestrians met their downfalls at the slippery corner of Barclay and West Streets in downtown Manhattan.

Today the Jacobys engage in a Platonic dialog on the unlucky expert:

Oswald: "What do you think is the one principal characteristic of people who qualify for the title 'Unlucky Expert'?"

Jim: "It is obscure defense. Every time you give your partner a chance to make a mistake, he may take advantage of the opportunity."

Oswald: "One of the finest examples of this obscure defense is from an individual tournament of the early thirties. East was one of the really great players of those early days. West was a fair player. I sat South and opened one club."

Jim: "Your opening bids were even lighter in those days than they are now."

Oswald: "My partner on this hand was the late Milton C. Work. In addition to being the first successful proponent of the 4-3-2-1 point count and the greatest auction bridge authority, he was also a real underbidder."

Jim: "I see that he got you to three no-trump all right."

Oswald: "West opened the Jack of diamonds and expert East carefully dropped the deuce. I won with the king and led a spade. West ducked but took the second spade after East discarded the deuce of hearts. The pair of deuces did not keep West from leading another spade and I romped home with four no-trump and a top score."

Instead of bidding two hearts over the double, West bids two clubs which is passed around to you. What do you do now?

Red Jacket was a Seneca orator noted for his oratory. His people called him Sagoyewatha, "he who awakens." He fought for the American Revolution, under his leadership the Senecas later joined themselves with the United States during the war of 1812. Later he became more hostile and in one of his speeches to the Americans he said: "You are a kindhearted people, but you are not your own advantage."

Murder Trial Testimony Continues

By ARTHUR EVERETT

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — State testimony has placed Melvin Lane Powers near the home of his uncle less than six hours before the multimillionaire was slain. The state currently is directing its efforts toward a complicated but fascinating phase of the first-degree murder trial. It is attempting to prove the element of opportunity — which involves the painstaking retracing of the defendant's footsteps in an effort to show that he was in the vicinity of the crime and therefore could have committed it. Powers is on trial for his life with his attractive blonde aunt, Candace Mossler, in the June 30, 1964, slaying of her husband, Jacques, 69, head of a $33-million banking and loan empire. Aunt and nephew have been depicted by the state as participants in a blazing, abnormal love affair although he is 29 and she is 10 or more years older. Today, the estate was expected to continue tracing Powers' movements surrounding the 1:45 a.m. period when Mossler was bludgeoned and stabbed 39 times.

Your Newspaperboy

Chances are that you hold this newspaper in your hand this morning because some young fellow in the neighborhood awoke before dawn, crawled out of a warm bed, threw on some clothes, rode his bike to a subscription, loaded his bundles of papers and made his appointed rounds while you slept. But shed no tears for the likes of him. He's learning lessons of life that no school teaches. He's having experiences which cannot be lifted from the pages of any book. Sure he has it tough some times. The rain will fall and the freeze come. He'll meet grouches and occasionally some subscriber will move away owing him. He'll run into inconsiderate people who think nothing of making him come back two, three and four times to collect the money he already has earned. But he'll also find that most folks are honest and appreciative and helpful. They admire a youngster who isn't afraid of work, who is building a certain inner toughness so he'll be able to handle the problems of adult life without caving in, and who is learning the quiet joy that comes from achievement and doing a job well.

His paper route is a training ground for life. Don't be surprised if he falls short of perfection occasionally, for after all he is still a trainee, but don't be too tolerant either. He has certain standards to meet this business in blue jeans, and he needs you to expect good service of him. Otherwise, you are helping teach him the wrong lesson. Our circulation manager, Harold Zebell, says the business community which, incidentally, has many leaders who once were newspaper boys themselves — will be surprised to learn what a big "industry" the youngsters comprise.

Last year, for example, the newspaperboys in Macon and Middle Georgia, who, under a contractual arrangement, buy papers wholesale and then retail them to subscribers, earned well over a half-million dollars. Of course, most of this $550,000 was spent with local and area merchants. But a sizeable chunk went into savings accounts, which will help pay for a college education a few years hence. Earning and learning.

Don't pity the fellow who must be up and about by the dawn's early light. He's got what it takes. — Macon (Ga.) Telegraph

17 Swiss Workers Suffocate

LOCARNO, Switzerland (AP) — Seventeen workmen were suffocated Tuesday night by a cloud of poisonous gas at a remote Swiss mountain power station.

An official at the power plant said the gas was of carbonic origin. Fifteen of the workmen were Italian. An Italian investigation commission arrived today, and details of the inquiry were withheld until its completion. Police said the dense cloud of yellow gas swept through a tunnel north of Locarno, where a power station has been under construction for several years, shortly before 15 Italian workers were to end the evening shift.

The foremen sounded the alarm and slowly withdrew into the tunnel ahead of the gas. He was killed. Two Swiss fire guards who rushed in after him also were overcome and died. The other 14 workers suffocated when an air current drove the gas through the tunnel from south to north.

The tunnel runs under Basodino Mountain where the Robbio power station is being built. It links the two small Alpine valleys of Di Maggio and Bedretto. The power station is in a remote area south of the Saint Gothard Mountain group in central Switzerland. The entire area is deep in snow and almost inaccessible at this time of year.

Saving Bonds Interest to Increase

By JOSEPH R. COYNE
WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson is expected to announce today an increase in the interest rate — possibly by as much as one-half of 1 per cent — on Series E and H savings bonds. They are the types sold to the public.

The increase would not only make savings bonds a more attractive investment but by stimulating bond sales — as the administration hopes it will — could also help avert inflation.

A saving-bond ceremony was scheduled for the White House (theater at noon but presidential aides declined to define its purpose. Treasury officials have said since last week, however, that an interest rate announcement was imminent.

The interest rate on Series E and H bonds is now 3 1/2 per cent yearly and Johnson could raise it to 4 1/4 per cent without additional congressional action.

The last increase was in 1959 when the rate was boosted to its present level from 3.52 per cent. Johnson said a month ago that the rates should be increased because alternative investments made savings bonds less attractive to the public. Most banks pay at least 4 per cent on savings accounts and some savings and loan associations pay close to 5 per cent.

The new interest rate will apply to all the presently outstanding $49 billion in savings bonds as well as to new issues.

Youth Who Shot Rabbi Succumbs

DETROIT (AP) — Richard Wisnietzky, 23, who shot the rabbi of his congregation before turning a pistol on himself, died of his wound today.

Wisnietzky, brilliant honor student and one-time mental patient, shot himself in the head Saturday after twice shooting Rabbi Morris Adler, 59, internationally known Jewish leader, as the rabbi conducted Sabbath services Saturday.

Rabbi Adler, in the intensive care unit of Sinai Hospital remained in grave condition. Doctors who performed brain surgery on the rabbi for the second time Monday, said Tuesday they noted "a few small gains which suggest an improving trend."

Wisnietzky, a former Woodrow Wilson scholar at the University of Michigan before being committed to a Michigan mental institution, had been receiving counseling from Rabbi Adler.

Wisnietzky's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Wisnietzky, remained by the young man's bedside until his death.

Says Super-roads to Save Lives

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — The commissioner of the Interstate Commerce Commission predicted Thursday that the interstate highway system will save 8,000 lives a year when the system is completed.

Rupert L. Murphy of Washington said the Bureau of Public Roads believes the system's built-in safety features will reduce "the extremely high toll of casualties and property damage from highway accidents."

Murphy, addressing the Arkansas Bus and Truck Association, said interstate highways had such safety features as separate roadways for opposing traffic, controlled access, gentle curves, low grades, long sight distances and wide lanes and shoulders.

He said about 20,000 miles of the 41,000-mile interstate system are now open and another 6,000 miles under construction. Target date for completion of the system is 1972.

Money Not Reason to Quit College

There is no necessity for any student to leave Southern State College in Magnolia solely for the lack of money to finance his education, Professor Milton Talley declared in a speech delivered before Hope Kiwanis Club.

"The various government-aid programs can be utilized to keep the student in school and earn a college degree — if that student has ambition and is maintaining a 'C' average in his grades," Mr. Talley went on to point out.

The average cost per student per year at Southern State is $1,000 and this can be obtained in grants, loans and a work-program that will enable any student desiring an education to obtain it.

Scientific progress has been so great in recent years that 50 percent of the students enrolled in American colleges today may find themselves employed in jobs after graduation — that today do not exist, said Mr. Talley.

Arguments to Delay the Military Bill

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate plunges into fresh argument today over Viet Nam with days of crackling debate in prospect before its expected overwhelming passage of a military supply bill.

Nearly 30 senators have notified the leadership they want an opportunity to discuss President Johnson's Southeast Asia policies before they vote on a $4.3-billion authorization measure. It covers part of the $12.3-billion emergency money request for Viet Nam outlays.

Acting Democratic Leader Russell B. Long of Louisiana declined a request by Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., a critic of Johnson's Viet Nam policies, to delay consideration of the bill until next week.

"Frankly," he said, "the funds to support our men who are fighting in Viet Nam are a critical matter and I very much doubt the wisdom of further delay."

Morse, in a telegram Tuesday to Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, recuperating in Florida from a respiratory illness, said that debate should be delayed until after the appearance of administration witnesses before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former ambassador to Saigon and a presidential adviser, is scheduled to appear Thursday. Secretary of State Dean Rusk will be Friday's witness.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, asked for speedy action. He said it is "vital that this bill clear the Congress by the latter part of this month."

Russell said in an interview he will oppose any effort to attach to the measure any policy rider. Critics of Johnson's policies have been talking about offering language which would admonish the President against expanding the Viet Nam war.

Russell predicted overwhelming approval of the bill when a vote is reached.

"We have around 300,000 Americans in Viet Nam, or in the waters adjacent to it," he said. "They did not order themselves there."

"Without regard to a divergence of views, practically every senator feels we should support with equipment, food, medical services and other necessities those who are fighting under our flag in that tortured land."

Nevertheless, Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., spokesman for a group which protested the resumption of air strikes against North Viet Nam targets, said critical issues are involved and "this legislation should not be hurried through."

He said the administration should not ask for a vote "until it has made its case" before the Foreign Relations group.

Free Vacation Awaiting Him

OCEANSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Marine Pfc. Daniel Rombyer has a free vacation awaiting him in Oceanside when he gets back from Viet Nam.

The Chamber of Commerce wants to make amends for a can of dog food received by the Michigan Marine with this note: "Eat well, animal." It had been mailed from Oceanside.

The package was sent to "A Marine in Viet Nam" and ended up in Rombyer's hands. He wrote his mother in Jackson, Mich., expressing his anger that the sender had not given a name or return address.

The story was published in Michigan newspapers and clippings were sent to the Oceanside Blade-Tribune. The Oceanside newspaper took them to the Chamber of Commerce.

Rombyer and his parents now have an invitation to spend a vacation in Oceanside.

Labor Unions Lash Johnson on Race Issue

By NEIL GILBRIDE

AP Labor Writer

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — AFL-CIO construction union leaders say that the government may be using racial discrimination charges to pre-empt them into holding down wage demands.

President C. J. Haggerty of the AFL-CIO Construction and Building Trades Department broached the charge in saying "it is a possibility" that the first civil rights suit against a labor organization was part of the Johnson administration's campaign to bring pressure against what it considers inflationary wage increases.

Construction union spokesmen concede there has been trouble in the past in persuading some local unions to accept Negroes, but said that a Justice Department civil rights suit in St. Louis was not justified.

A high government source said that the suit against the St. Louis AFL-CIO Building Trades Council came "like a bolt out of the blue" while attempts were being made to settle the case amicably.

However, there was no immediate official reaction from the Labor or Justice departments on Haggerty's statement that the St. Louis suit might be connected with a Labor Department effort to impose a national wage settlement plan on the construction unions.

He made the statement at a news conference after hearing a detailed report from St. Louis AFL-CIO officials, who were charged with racial discrimination under the 1964 Civil Rights Act for walking off the job of constructing the St. Louis march when three Negro plumbers were hired.

Troops, Planes Won't Let the Viet Cong Rest

By THOMAS A. REEDY

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Allied troops and air power gave the Viet Cong no rest today, but except for disengagement skirmishes the insurgents showed little inclination to defend any territory.

U.S. forces reported 66 more Viet Cong killed in two actions. American losses, if any, were not reported.

But U.S. and Vietnamese military spokesmen announced that enemy fire killed 340 U.S. and South Vietnamese troops last week, while the Allied forces killed 684 Viet Cong and captured 64. The enemy losses were less than half those the Communists suffered the week before, when 1,541 Viet Cong were reported killed and 245 captured.
